-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --
Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-38 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 1, 3-10, 12, 13, 15-21, 28, and 31-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. These claims are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because these claims have no connection to the technological arts. The method claims do not specify how the claims utilize any technological arts. For example, no network or server is specified. To overcome this rejection, the Examiner recommends that the Applicant amend the claim to specify or to better clarify that the method is utilizing a medium or apparatus, etc within the technological arts. Appropriate correction is required.

As an initial matter, the United States Constitution under Art. I, §8, cl. 8 gave Congress the power to "[p]romote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries". In carrying out this power, Congress authorized under 35 U.S.C. §101 a grant of a patent to "[w]hoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition or matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof." Therefore, a fundamental premise is that a patent is a statutorily created vehicle for Congress to confer an exclusive right to the inventors for "inventions" that promote the progress of "science and the useful arts". The phrase "technological arts" has been created and used by the courts to offer another view of the term "useful arts". See In re Musgrave, 167 USPQ (BNA) 280 (CCPA 1970). Hence, the first test of whether an invention is eligible for a patent is to determine if the invention is within the "technological arts".

Further, despite the express language of §101, several judicially created exceptions have been established to exclude certain subject matter as being patentable subject matter covered by §101. These exceptions include "laws of nature", "natural phenomena", and "abstract ideas". See Diamond v. Diehr, 450, U.S. 175, 185, 209 USPQ (BNA) 1, 7 (1981). However, courts have found that even if an invention incorporates abstract ideas, such as mathematical algorithms, the invention may nevertheless be statutory subject matter if the invention as a whole produces a "useful, concrete and tangible result." See State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Financial Group, Inc. 149 F.3d 1368, 1973, 47 USPQ2d (BNA) 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1998).

This "two prong" test was evident when the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals (CCPA) decided an appeal from the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (BPAI). See In re Toma, 197 USPQ (BNA) 852 (CCPA 1978). In Toma, the court held that the recited mathematical algorithm did not render the claim as a whole non-statutory using the Freeman-Walter-Abele test as applied to Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 175 USPQ (BNA) 673 (1972). Additionally, the court decided separately on the issue of the "technological arts". The court developed a "technological arts" analysis:

The "technological" or "useful" arts inquiry must focus on whether the claimed subject matter...is statutory, not on whether the product of the claimed subject matter...is statutory, not on whether the prior art which the claimed subject matter purports to replace...is statutory, and not on whether the claimed subject matter is presently perceived to be an improvement over the prior art, e.g., whether it "enhances" the operation of a machine. In re Toma at 857.

In Toma, the claimed invention was a computer program for translating a source human language (e.g., Russian) into a target human language (e.g., English). The court found that the claimed computer implemented process was within the "technological art" because the claimed invention was an operation being performed by a computer within a computer.

The decision in State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Financial Group, Inc. never addressed this prong of the test. In State Street Bank & Trust Co., the court found that the "mathematical exception" using the Freeman-Walter-Abele test has little, if any, application to determining the presence of statutory subject matter but rather, statutory subject matter should be based on whether the operation produces a "useful, concrete and tangible result". See State Street Bank & Trust Co. at 1374. Furthermore, the court found that there was no "business method exception" since the court decisions that purported to create such exceptions were based on novelty or lack of enablement issues and not on statutory grounds. Therefore, the court held that "[w]hether the patent's claims are too broad to be patentable is not to be judged under §101, but rather under §§102, 103 and 112." See State Street Bank & Trust Co. at 1377. Both of these analysis goes towards whether the claimed invention is non-statutory because of the presence of an abstract idea. Indeed, State Street abolished the Freeman-Walter-Abele test used in Toma. However, State Street never addressed the second part of the analysis, i.e., the "technological arts" test established in Toma because the invention in State Street (i.e., a computerized system for determining the year-end income, expense, and capital gain or loss for the portfolio) was already determined to be within the technological arts under the Toma test. This dichotomy has been recently acknowledged by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (BPAI) in affirming a §101 rejection finding the claimed invention to be non-statutory. See Ex parte Bowman, 61 USPQ2d (BNA) 1669 (BdPatApp&Int 2001).

In the current application, no technological art (i.e., computer, network, server) is being utilized by claims 1, 3-10, 12, 13, 15-21, 28, and 31-37. At least one step of the body of the claims must explicitly utilize the technological arts. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, 2, 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, 22, 23, 28, 29, 34, 35, 38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fajkowski (5,905,246).

Claim 1, 12, 23, 28: Fajkowski discloses a method, server, system, medium comprising: maintaining an e-coupon database that comprises an e-coupon identifier, an e-coupon expiration condition, and a post-expiration instruction (col 1, lines 5-10; col 3, lines 50-55); receiving a request to redeem the e-coupon associated with the e-coupon identifier when the e-coupon is expired; and executing the post-expiration instruction associated with the e-coupon identifier (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Art Unit: 3622

Claim 2, 13, 29: Fajkowski discloses the method of claim 1, further comprising issuing the e-coupon from an e-coupon server (col 4, line 64-col 5, line 39).

Claim 7, 18, 34: Fajkowski discloses the method of claim 1, wherein the expiration condition is an expiration date (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Claim 8, 19, 35: Fajkowski discloses the method of claim 1, further comprising: executing the post-expiration instruction only if one or more transaction conditions are true (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Claim 11, 22, 38: Fajkowski discloses the method of claim 1, wherein the request to redeem an e-coupon is received from a consumer using a graphical user interface (col 6, lines 44-60; col 31, lines 14-26; Fig. 20a).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 3, 4-6, 9, 10, 14, 15-17, 20, 21, 24-27, 30, 31-33, 36, 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fajkowski (5,905,246).

Claim 3, 14, 30: Fajkowski discloses the method of claim 2.

Art Unit: 3622

Fajkowski further comprising configuring the e-coupon server through a user interface (Fig. 1; col 4, line 64-col 5, line 39; col 1, lines 5-15).

Fajkowski further discloses utilizing a graphical user interface (col 6, lines 44-60; col 31, lines 14-26; Fig. 20a).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that Fajkowski can configure the e-coupon server utilizing a graphical user interface. One would have been motivated to do this in order to provide a convenient way for e-coupon configuring.

Claim 4-6, 15-17, 24-27, 31-33: Fajkowski's discloses the method of claim 1.

Fajkowski further discloses that the post-expiration instruction is selected from the group consisting of rejecting the e-coupon, fully redeeming the e-coupon, partially redeeming the e-coupon, issuing an alternative e-coupon, and combinations thereof (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Fajkowski does not explicitly disclose partially redeeming the coupon.

However, Fajkowski discloses that coupons can be varied in numerous ways, including varying the discount amount, and adjusted to particular users and also immediately redeemed after an adjustment (col 5, lines 36-65; col 24, lines 45-54) and that a variety options or coupons can be offered when an expired coupon is presented for redemption (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Art Unit: 3622

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that Fajkowski's offer when an expired coupon is presented can be for redeeming the coupon for a different value. One would have been motivated to do this in order to maintain the loyalty of customer deemed valuable.

Fajkowski further discloses that the post-expiration instruction comprises issuing an alternative e-coupon for a product selected from the same product and a substitute product (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Fajkowski's further discloses that the e-coupon database further comprises an estimated value of the coupon, and wherein the post-expiration instruction comprises issuing an alternative e-coupon with an estimated value in proportion to the expired e-coupon (col 16, line 60-col 17, line 21; col 19, line 50-col 20, line 10; col 20, line 34-col 21, line 6; col 33, lines 35-40; col 35, lines 24-39).

Claims 9, 20, 36 and 10, 21, 37: Fajkowski discloses the method of claim 8.

Fajkowski further discloses tracking a consumer profile for marketing purposes and tracking return customer activity (col 5, lines 30-39; col 3, lines 40-50; col 24, lines 45-54).

Fajkowski further discloses that the cashier can utilize override codes or arbitrary decisions to accept an expired coupon (col 19, line 64-col 20, line 10).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that the override codes to redeem an expired coupon can be determined by consumer profile or history. One would have been motivated to do this in order to market to and retain consumer considered desirable.

Conclusion

The following prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

- a. Barnett (6,321,208) discloses adapting coupons and expiration dates.
